Say verses over a tremolo on D played by BX and BM

Tyrannosaurus raised his head
And rolled his evil eye,
Bared his long and yellow teeth
And bid his neighbours bye.
His pygmy brain was slow to grasp
The happenings of the day;
And so he roamed and slew his friends
And ate without delay.

Allosaurus awed his foe,
He awed his friends who passed.
His teeth were made for tearing flesh,
His teeth were made to gnash.
Taller than a building now,
Taller than a tree,
He roamed about the swamp filled world
And ate his company.

(sing this as the last verse)

Eaters of their friends and foe
Or dabblers in the slime,
Their pygmy brains were slow to grasp
Once upon a time!
